Fijian Bobo Massage

The traditional Fijian Bobo (pronounced 'mbombo') is a sacred healing art believed to pass through the family lines of natural healers. The rhythmic techniques are unique to each therapist and integrate the use of elbows and forearms to penetrate deep into the muscle tissue to release chronic tension.

Hot Stone

Smooth water-heated basalt stones are placed at key points on the body to melt away blocked energy. With the aid of nourishing virgin coconut oil the hot stones become a very effective massage tool allowing the therapist access to the deeper muscle layers as she massages with the stones in long flowing strokes over the body. Heat from the stones has a sedative effect that can relieve chronic pain and promote deep relaxation.
